Overview

Daniela's practice focuses on complex, commercial, banking, fiduciary, and broker-dealer litigation. She represents a diverse set of clients, ranging from individuals, LLCs, and closely-held corporations to large, multinational companies and major financial institutions in state and federal courts in and outside of Ohio, in mediation, and in arbitration before the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority. Daniela is involved in all phases of trial preparation and case management, including motion practice, discovery, taking and defending depositions, preparing witnesses, arguing motions, and appellate briefing. She also handles immigration matters, including employment- and education-based immigration and enforcement. Daniela is fluent in Spanish and has basic knowledge of Portuguese.

While in law school, Daniela served as an extern at the General Division of the Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas, in the chambers of Judge Stuart A. Friedman.

Experience

- Represented executor, as part of litigation team, and prevailed at the Ohio Supreme Court in precedent setting matter regarding the requirements for the presentation of a claim against a decedent's estate.
- Defended major financial institutions in customer disputes in arbitration before the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority and in state court, including defending against claims under state and federal securities and consumer protection laws, common law fraud, and similar allegations.
- Successfully represented a client at a U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement bond hearing after the client had been detained due to the expiration of her F-1 Student Visa.
- Assisted international students with applications for work authorization through F-1 Optional Practical Training and the H-1B process on behalf of numerous corporations in Silicon Valley.
- Advised international students on securing F-1 Student Visas and the immigration process, including working to change their immigration statuses once they were in the United States.
- Defended national bank in claims related to the Ohio Uniform Fiduciary Act, and obtained summary judgment on all claims in a decision that was affirmed by the Fifth District Court of Appeals. Tsepas v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, NA, 2017-Ohio-1272 (Ohio 5th Dist. Ct. App.).
- Defended multinational natural resources company, as part of litigation team, in $100 million breach of contract and tort action, assisting in all phases of litigation and appeal, and developing defense strategy.
